AMUSEMENTS.

The following attractions are to appear at the Paris Grand:
"Holy City," matinee and night,
December 24.
Edwin Hoyt in "Hamlet," Dec. 30.
"James Boys in Missouri," Jan. 3.
"King Dodo," Jan. 5.
"Happy Hooligan," Jan. 7, matinee
and night.

The announcement of the performance of "The Holy City," is received with great satisfaction. No play presented this season has made the impression credited to this great Biblical drama produced by Gordon & Bennett in even more sumptuous manner than their other conspicuously successful productions. The corterie of players, trained chorus and monster scenic equipment of this grand dramatic spectacle is everywhere praised for superior combination and in arranging for its appearance here, Manager Wiggins has given his patrons a theatrical feast that will be long remembered.

This grand production will be at the Paris Grand for matinee an evening of Saturday, Dec. 24.

Fame in Punch.

"It's funny how quickly fame comes to the professional pugilist. Just one punch and—"

"Yes, he's a mere nobody, but some morning he wakes up and finds himself famous."

"Oh, no. He doesn't become famous by waking up, but by putting some one else to sleep."—Chicago Journal.

Finally.

As you walk the way along,
Weave the sunlight in the song;
Even let the darkest night
Have one star that dreams of light!

—Atlanta Constitution.

ANOTHER GUESS COMING.

She—is my hat on straight, Cholly?
He—No; it tilts to the right.
She—That is just what it should do,
you simpleton.—St. Louis Republic.

They Merely Tote 'Em.

"Now, how do you move your poles about?"
We queried. "Do you float 'em?"
The chief replied with cheerful shout:
"Oh, no! We merely tote 'em."
—Chicago Journal.

Sympathy.

"You look awfully tired, young man," said the benevolent-looking woman to the young man with the books under his arm.
"Yes, ma'am," replied the student.
"I'm studying for a doctor."
"It's a shame! Why don't you let the doctor study for himself?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Disconcerts the Pastor.

A prominent English clergyman once congratulated an old lady on her bravery in fighting her way to church against a terrible tempest, but received the disconcerting reply: "My husband gets so cross-grained after meals that I have to get out of his way, so I might as well go to church."—Chicago Journal.

Glory.

"I understand that her mother is one of the Daughters of the American Revolution."

"Yes, but the thing that interests me is that the girl herself is the daughter of a millionaire."—N. Y. Herald.

Seasonable.

And now the restaurant garbage can
The season's story tells;
Where once we saw only melon rinds
We now see oyster shells.
—Chicago News.

THE MAIN POINT.

"How can you want to marry my daughter if you have never met her and know nothing about her?"

"But I know all about you, sir."—Chicago Chronicle.

Yette.

A man who loved his cigarette
Would beg one from each man he mette,
He died one day
And people say
They think that he is smoking yette.
—Chicago Chronicle.

What He Thought.

Hixon—When I began chewing tobacco I thought it would make a man of me.

Dixon—You did, eh?
Hixon—Yes, but shortly after I took my first chew I thought it was going to make an angel of me.—Chicago News.

How He Does It.

"There goes a fellow who takes life easy."

"Somebody leave him a fortune?"

"No. He's an appendicitis specialist."—Chicago Record Herald.

Application For An Indictment Against
Thomas W. Lawson.

New York, Dec. 17.—An application for an indictment of Thomas W. Lawson and for the showing of the books of the Amalgamated Copper Co. was made at the district attorney's office Friday by Henry Wellington Wack, who lives most of the time in London. Mr. Wack is a member of the National Bar association of this country and of the Royal Geographical Society of London.

Accompanied by his lawyer, Charles M. Beattie, Mr. Wack called at the office of District Attorney Jerome and left there his formal application that Mr. Lawson be indicted.

Mr. Wack says that he owns outright 1,000 shares of Amalgamated, and that it was worth when he came here a few weeks ago $51,780.

As a result of Mr. Lawson's acts, Mr. Wack asserted, his stocks fell to 59 and he suffered a loss of approximately $21,000. Mr. Wack asks that a demand be made on the Amalgamated Co. for its books, to ascertain just what its stock is worth; and if Lawson's declaration proves false, he wants him indicted under chapter 435 of the code, third sub-division, which provides that any person who knowingly circulates a false rumor, statement or intelligence against a stock is punishable by a fine of not more than $5,000 or by imprisonment for not more than three years, or both.

Mr. Wack says that he owns outright 1,000 shares of Amalgamated, and that it was worth when he came here a few weeks ago $51,780.

As a result of Mr. Lawson's acts, Mr. Wack asserted, his stocks fell to 59 and he suffered a loss of approximately $21,000. Mr. Wack asks that a demand be made on the Amalgamated Co. for its books, to ascertain just what its stock is worth; and if Lawson's declaration proves false, he wants him indicted under chapter 435 of the code, third sub-division, which provides that any person who knowingly circulates a false rumor, statement or intelligence against a stock is punishable by a fine of not more than $5,000 or by imprisonment for not more than three years, or both.

Probable Fatal Shooting.

In a difficulty in Marshall & Thompson's, a negro saloon on Main street, Saturday night, Ellis Parker, a colored exercise boy for Talbot Bros., was shot and probably fatally wounded by Charles Holly, colored. Parker was not involved in the quarrel being only an innocent by-stander. Holly got into a quarrel with another negro and pulling his gun began to fire. He fired three times, the crowd of negroes in the place falling over one another to get out, but Parker seemed to be the unfortunate one, receiving into his body two of the balls. The first struck him in the leg and the second in the left side just below the heart. The later wound may prove fatal as the doctors could not locate the ball.

Holly made his escape and has not been arrested up to the time we go to press.

Meeting of Bourbon Bar.

The attorneys were so pleased with Judge J. D. Carroll at the term of court just closed, they called a meeting of the Bourbon Bar and passed resolutions and on Friday night from nine to twelve o'clock they banqueted him in a royal manner. The resolutions were as follows:

"WHEREAS, Honorable Judge John D. Carroll, by appointment of the Governor of Kentucky, has presided during the November, 1904, term of the Bourbon Circuit Court, and

"WHEREAS, By his legal attainments, his judicial acumen and his unfailing courtesy, he has rendered this term of the Bourbon Circuit Court memorable, both by the pleasant relations existing between bench and bar, and the vast number of cases passed upon and disposed of:

"Therefore, be it resolved, That the members of the Bourbon Bar hereby express their appreciation of the services rendered by Hon. Judge J. D. Carroll, to themselves, their clients and the Commonwealth;

And further, be it resolved, That in token of our appreciation these resolutions be spread upon the Order Book of this Court, and an attested copy be sent to Judge Carroll."

Judge Harmon Stitt presided as toastmaster, at the banquet, and those who responded to toasts were Denis Dundon, R. C. Talbott, H. C. Howard, Nevil C. Fisher, Judge Carroll, C. M. Thomas, E. M. Dickson, Judge J. H. Brent, Hon. W. H. McMillan, Judge Mann, T. E. Moore and J. M. Brennan. Hon. F. L. McChesney in a touchingly beautiful tribute to the high integrity of the members of the Bar, stated that during a Circuit Clerkship of 15 years not one of them had deceived him in reference to an agreed order. Judge Carroll said that the kindly feelings existing between the Paris attorneys was remarkable. Neither Judge Cantrill nor Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin were present.

New Grocery Stand.

Owing to the big increase in my grocery business, on yesterday I opened up a grocery in the room lately occupied by the Geo. Alexander & Co. Bank, on Main street, opposite the Court House. This room will be stocked with the best line of up-to-date groceries that can be bought. We will also carry a fine line of candies and fruits for the Christmas trade. In fact, it will be the most complete line of fancy and staple groceries ever offered to the trade in this section of the country.

WM. SAUER.

Leave Your Order With Edwards.

If you will leave your Christmas order with Ossian Edwards you may depend on it being filled with the best the market affords. He will have a nice lot of turkeys, mince meat, fruits of every kind, nuts, candies, both cheap and fine. In fact, he has taken pains to select one of the largest collections of good things for the Christmas trade that has ever been seen in a grocery in our city. Don't wait too long to order your turkey for Christmas, let us put your name down now, for we will have an extra fine lot. We deliver goods to all parts of the city promptly.

A Big Display.

Paris merchants, in anticipations of a large holiday trade, which is opening briskly, have one of the largest and finest displays of goods ever seen in Central Kentucky. Do your shopping early that you may have choice of these fine stocks.

OH! MAMA! If you buy me a Christmas present, I want you to get it from J. W. Davis & Co. The things that you always bought from them was good.

"Who Tied My Dog Loose."

Monday morning on entering the store, S. E. Borland was surprised to find everything topsy turvey, games, toys, &c., scattered in every direction. A further investigation revealed the fact that one of the Woggle Bugs had got loose and started on a rampage, scattering toy dashes, fancy glassware, and pretty nio-nacs everywhere. Two or three of the pretty plates were broken, together with some of the fancy bisque figures and vases. After eyeing the wreck a moment, Mr. B. located the pieces in an automobile and soon had everything to rights.

DEWHURST

THE SUNSET GATES.

I have often thought, when sunset
Burned o'er the mountain's crest,
And its strange, unearthly beauty
Kindled along the west,
In a vision of wonderful splendor,
That Heaven's gates were ajar—
And past them I caught faint glimmers
Of the land where our loved ones are.

Behold—or is it but fancy?—
The sunset gates swing wide.
And I see them, their parted portals,
The hills on the Heaven side.
The hills that are crowned with sunshin
Of a day that never ends—
The country where no grave is,
And no one mourns lost friends.

I fancy I catch through the gateway
A glimpse of the golden street,
And an echo of wonderful music,
Mystic, low, and sweet,
Comes of the winds of sunset
From the country far away,
Where the dear, remembered voices,
Sing in God's choir to-day.

And see! But a shadow hides it,
I thought that I saw a hand,
That beckoned me to come over
To the beautiful summer land.
Oh, loved of mine, whom I miss so,
Are you there at the sunset gate
To watch for me down the pathway
That leads home, soon or late?

Ah, the angels of dusk are closing
The gates in the western skies,
And no longer I see the city,
Or the hills of Paradise.
But love, like the soul, is deathless,
And some day—God knows when—
I shall pass through the sunset gateway
And find my own again.

Little France

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN
"THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS
KING OF THE SEA

CHAPTER XVI.—CONTINUED.
"Mademoiselle," he said softly, "you told me your name was—"

"De Coudic. Yes, monsieur," she answered, with her eyes still fixed upon the street, though he noticed that she turned her face away from him.

Was she discovered at last? Could he suspect, she thought.

"I had thought," he continued, then
he stopped.

"Mademoiselle, you weep," he said.
"Yes, monsieur."

"Who passes in the street? Those lights, what are they?"

"Monsieur, a funeral."

"Whose funeral, mademoiselle?"

"Alas, monsieur, I think it is the burial of New France!"

"Mademoiselle?"

"Tis the funeral of the Marquis de Montcalm, monsieur. He is being borne to his last rest."

"He was a brave man, Mademoiselle
de Coudic, and he died as a soldier would fain die, in the front of the battle line."

"He was my grandfather's friend, monsieur, and mine. He was so good to me. I know his wife, his children.
He loved them and longed to go back to them. But he loved his country, his duty, his king, more than all,
monsieur, and so he stayed, and now
he will never go back any more."

She put her face down in her hands and sobbed bitterly. People are as little children when they weep. Where had he seen that bowed head? Heavens!
was it not upon his own shoulder?
Why, the picture was the same!

The moonlight was stealing through the easement just as before. She wore something filmy and white. It might have been that night-robe that had enshrouded the slender girl. His heart beat so that it nearly suffocated him, and yet—de Coudic! It could not be!

"Mademoiselle," he said, all the passion surging in his soul quivering in his voice, "do not weep. By heaven, I do not know how or why it is, but
to see you weep tears my very heart!
Can it be that I saw you but yesterday and loved you, mademoiselle?"

She turned and faced him. The feeling in his voice, the look in his eyes,
as she stared at him, so perfectly matched her own she had no will nor power to withstand any longer. Deliberately she fetched a light from behind the curtain and set it down on the table at the head of his bed; then she stood where the full light would fall on her face, and drawing herself up threw out her arms wide before him.

"Monsieur!" she cried. "Oh, do you not know me?"

"Is it thou, Little France?" he exclaimed, dazed and bewildered by his thoughts. "Who could have thought it? How beautiful!"

She dashed away the tears with her hand. She thought he had not yet recognized her, as he lay spellbound gazing on her matchless beauty. Her scarlet lips quivered a moment, then shaped themselves for sound, and from her full, soft throat came the notes of the little Breton cradle-song which he had heard her sing in the garden of the Hesperides. "Toutouie, la, la!" But no mother ever sang it to child as she sang it then.

"Anne!" he cried. "The Lady Anne!
Fool that I was! How blind! I should have known you! I should have recognized your footprint even had I lain dead at your doorstep!"

"Sir Philip! Sir Philip!" she exclaimed. "How could you forget? But I knew! Oh, my love, my love!"

She sank on her knees at the bedside again and leaned over him.

"But you are betrothed to de Vitre?"
she cried in jealous anguish.

"Ah, Philip, my knight!" she murmured, "what matters it? 'Tis you I love. I love!"

She threw her arms around his neck; their lips met in one long kiss charged with dreams and ideals of years. The joy, the surprise, were almost too great for him. He closed his eyes; in his weak state he thought he would have fainted. It had all come upon him suddenly with such a shock.
She had known it for two days. He had been so desperately wounded.

She was the stronger of the two then and she recovered herself the sooner. Something assisted her perhaps. Her throbbing breast as it lay upon his own was met by the pressure of something round and hard. The little locket! It flashed into her jealous mind in an instant.

"Monsieur Grafton," she said, drawing away from him with a sudden change of mood, "you not only forgot me, you not only did not know me, but you—That locket, sir?"

"Yes, mademoiselle," answered Grafton simply, for it was impossible for him to deceive this woman, or to evade
the question.

"Ah! Carrying another woman's face over your heart and speaking love
to me!"

"O Anne!" he cried, "there may be another woman in the locket, there is only yourself in my heart."

"Whose picture is there?"

"I may not tell."

"Monsieur will not tell?"

"Nay, I can not. 'Tis honor seals my lips."

He wished he had never given the promise so lightly uttered in the cabin
of the Sutherland, but, being given, it must be faithfully kept.

"The honor of a woman?" she asked.
"Of a man, mademoiselle, of a soldier,
of a friend."

"Explain yourself, monsieur."

"Mademoiselle Anne, I can not, but I give you my word of honor as an English officer, the word of an American gentleman, your mother's land, mademoiselle, that the lady of the locket is nothing to me, that I cherish
the face of no woman except your own.
Ever since those days when I was held a prisoner in the old chateau, since the hour—do you recall it?—when I carried you in my arms and kissed you first,
I have loved you. I have thought and dreamed of you alone among woman-kind. When I went away from France
I left my heart behind. You have had it—you have it now."

"But the locket?" she persisted,
while the music of his words rang through the room.

"Did he sleep, did he dream? All night long she seemed to be by his side."

She knelt beside that old bed, she slipped her fair, round young arm underneath his neck and lavished caresses upon him. Her hands played with the curls upon his forehead. Her eyes looked love in his, her voice whispered endearments in broken tones; all her being went out to meet his. She was trembling with her passion, nervous
at his touch; she could not be quiet,
she must move or die. She hovered over him like an angel of love and tenderness.

He lay there so white, so pale, so weak, so happy, with a love that was as strong as hers looking from his eyes. His one free hand she held tightly, pressed it to her breast, kissed it fondly, let it again and again.

And how beautiful she was! One look in the unfathomable depths of those great eyes might have told him
the truth before. The sound of that voice quivering with joy that was almost pain should have spoken to him. How blind he had been—a fool! He forgot five years of separation and grieved that he had lost one day! The past faded away, the future lay in the distance, the present was their own.

Presently, as the first fierce intensity of her passion spent itself, she laid her head upon his breast and listened in sweet surrender to the beating of his heart, hearing that heart throbbing for her, only for her. The room was very still. Words were never coined to express what they felt, and neither spoke.

It was dark outside. The night had fallen. Clouds had swept across the face of the moon, hiding its splendor.
The sky was overcast, muttered peals of thunder rolled swiftly through the chamber. The candle had burned itself out, it flickered away; the gray shadows grew into darkness. It was deep and still there. In that silence heart whispered to heart in language which gods and lovers may understand.
Bye-and-bye her arm was slipped from beneath his head. Had hours or moments passed, or had they lived an eternity since the kiss of recognition? Her head, that had lain so lightly upon his breast, was lifted. The sweet lips, whose color he could dream of even in the darkness, melted once again upon his own—and she was gone.

He turned inquiringly to the merchants, but no one apparently cared
to break the silence. No one wished to assume the stigma of being the first
to make the proposition in furtherance
of which they had assembled.

"What, gentlemen!" continued de Ramesay sarcastically, "are your desires so base that none of you have even courage to mention them? Monsieur Daine, it was at your house, I am informed, that the gentlemen held their meeting this morning. Will you speak?"

"Monsieur le Chevalier," stammered
Daine, flushing and paling by turns,
"we are—we cannot—we do not—in short, we came to beg you to surrender
the town."

"Ah!" said the governor, "and why should I give up a charge devolved upon me by his majesty the king?"

"We are starving, monsieur," answered Daine more boldly; "our dwellings, our shops, our warehouses are ruined. We can do no more. If the English break into the town, if they storm the walls, we have over 2,000 women and children here. Think of them, sir!"

"True," said de Ramesay, "but so long as we have arms in our hands the English will not break through the walls. Is it not so, gentlemen?"

"Vive la nouvelle France!"

"Let us die for the flag!"

"Vive le roi!"

"Death to the English!" broke in confused acclamations from the little group of officers behind the chevalier.
The others were silent.

Through the broker window-panes
the rain beat and the wind swept in mournful harmony with the thoughts of the people who crowded the room.
At the lower end were congregated a body of the most influential citizens of the town. Their plain but rich dress, comfortable cloaks, prosperous appearance, proclaimed that they were men of substance and condition. A little apart from them stood the officers of the colonial militia in bedraggled,
weather-stained uniforms.

The merchants faced de Ramesay boldly. The eyes of the citizen soldiers sank to the ground, and they looked everywhere but at him. They shifted uneasily under the stern gaze of the veteran commander, while their hands played nervously with their sword-hilts. De Ramesay was attended by the officers of his staff, able soldiers all; some of them were drenched with rain and covered with marks of their exposure to the inclement weather, which showed they had just come from the ramparts. Among them were Rounvigny, St. Luc, Piedmont, and Joannes the town major,
and with them de Vitre, still under restraint by de Ramesay's order.

The governor stood at the great
table with his officers grouped around him. The merchants and militia officers drifted together at the opposite side. A stranger would have instantly recognized that here were two parties to debate a serious proposition. Sadness was the predominating note in de Ramesay's face; haughty pride and contempt flashed from the eyes of the nobles and professional soldiers at his back; dogged determination was evidenced in every line in the portly figures of the merchants; and stubborn shame spoke from the drooped heads of the militia officers.

"Messieurs," said the governor quietly, "you have asked an audience
for a purpose which I can but too well divine. Will you speak your mind and have done with it? The gentlemen of the counter first."

He turned inquiringly to the merchants, but no one apparently cared
to break the silence. No one wished
to assume the stigma of being the first
to make the proposition in furtherance
of which they had assembled.

INCENSE OFFERED IN VAIN.

Fulsome Praise That Had Upon Its Object Anything but the Desired Effect.

Barrett Wendell, professor of English at Harvard, cannot endure fulsome
praise of any sort or in any disguise.
He had done his best, but the end
was approaching. Sad indeed is the moment when we realize that our best
is unavailing. The rations of all had been reduced and reduced until starvation stared them in the face. No part of the town was safe now from the English fire. The very chateau itself
in which he stood was riddled with shells. There was a great gaping hole in the roof of his cabinet, through
which the rain poured dismally.

De Ramesay had just come in from a tour of the walls. It was hopeless outlook indeed before the governor.
He had done his best, but the end
was approaching. Sad indeed is the
moment when we realize that our best
is unavailing. The rations of all had
been reduced and reduced until starvation stared them in the face. No
part of the town was safe now from the English fire. The very chateau itself
in which he stood was riddled with
shells. There was a great gaping hole
in the roof of his cabinet, through
which the rain poured dismally.

The temper of the garrison had grown worse and worse. Nothing whatever had been heard from de Levis. De Ramesay felt that if an assaulant were delivered it could not be met. His garrison originally consisted of 150 troops of the line, some 400 or 500 colony troops, and the local militia, but had been much reduced by death, wounds and starvation, and was growing less every day. The colonial soldiers and militia had been deserting in handfuls.

Presently Capt. Rouvigny entered.

"Monsieur," he said, saluting, "a body of merchants, headed by Monsieur Daine, are here to see you, and—"

"Bid them attend me in the great hall of the chateau, captain," interrupted the governor gloomily, "and summon the officers of my staff. Let some one go for Monsieur Piedmont.
He can be spared from the walls.
We need his counsel."

"Come back. If there is the faintest
feeling of affection in your own heart, if you know what love is, you must know 'tis here!"

RIGHT NOT RECOGNIZED.

Son of Busy Traveling Man Indignant at Familiarity of Scarce Parent.

The story of the hard worked newspaper man who devoted so much of his time to his work that he did not recognize the youngest member of his family when he met the youngster unexpectedly is not without its parallel. In this case, says the New York Press, it was the baby, who, not having sufficient opportunity to become acquainted with his proud parent, made a remark which led to resolves of reformation.

A traveling man naturally gets home but once in each week, sometimes drawing a two-week trip, and in other cases being away from his home for even a longer period. He usually tries to dash in home for Sunday, and on one of these dashes, in a certain home, the young man of the family having acquired that title some four years previously, was very bad, indeed, and finally forced the father to administer the merited, though mild, punishment. The injured youngster immediately made a wild dash for his mother, wailing at the top of his voice: "Mother, mother, moth-e-r; that man comes here on Sunday has been spanking me."

HAD FINE EYE FOR HAIRS.

Professor of Natural History Was Too Keen for Mischievous Students.

An eminent naturalist who holds—and fills, as well as a chair in a university, according to the members of his class one morning that he had something of unusual interest to show them, relates Youth's Companion.

"I have here, gentlemen," he said, "some hairs from the skin of a young crested seal, and we will proceed to study their peculiarities."

Unfolding the small piece of paper that contained them, he spread the hairs out on a sheet of white cardboard and turned to get his microscope, which was on a desk behind him.

While his back was turned a roguish student quickly swept the hairs off the desk into his hand, and substituted others very closely resembling them.

"Young gentlemen," said the professor, severely, a moment later, as he glanced at the sheet of cardboard, "there has been some underground work here. These are mole hairs."

They never attempted to fool the professor again.

Assistance Needed.

The real estate man was doing his best to sell an absurdly lot.

"I guess you're a good deal like the man who caught the bear," said his prospective victim, who was pretty foxy.

"What do you mean?"

"You want some one to help you let go."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Doing Great Work.

Florissant, Mo., Dec. 19th.—(Special.)—That Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing a great work in curing the more terrible forms of Kidney Disease, such as Bright's Disease, Dropsy and Diabetes, everybody knows. But it must also be noted that they are doing a still greater work in wiping out thousands of cases of the earlier stages of Kidney Disease. Take for instance Mrs. Peter Bartee, of this place. She says:—

"I have been subject to pains in my back and knees for about three years, but since I have been taking Dodd's Kidney Pill I have been entirely cured."

Others tell similar stories. In fact, in this part of Missouri there are scores of people who have cured the early symptoms of Kidney Disease with Dodd's Kidney Pill. The use of the great American Kidney Remedy thus saved not only the lives of Kidney Disease victims, but thousands of other Americans from years of suffering.

TWO YEARS OF AGONY.

One Cake of Cuticura Soap and One Box of Cuticura Cured Baby's Awful Humor.

"When my sister was eighteen months old a humor broke out on her shoulders, extending clear across the back. For two years it caused her intense suffering. It would seep over and then crack open and a watery matter ooze from it. Then the scale would fall off and it would be raw for a time. We had several different doctors and tried everything we could think of, but without effecting a cure. Then we got one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment, which cured her completely and without scar or blemish. (Signed) Lillie Chase Walker, 5 Tremont St., Woodfords, Me."

ARBITRATION FAVERED

Mass Meeting Held in New York to Ratify Treaties Signed.

A Resolution Was Passed Favoring the Extension By the Government of the United States of the Principle of Arbitration.

New York, Dec. 17.—A mass meeting, called to urge the prompt ratification of the arbitration treaties recently signed by the state department with several of the leading foreign powers, was held Friday night at Carnegie Hall, under the auspices of the New York executive committee of the American conference on international arbitration. There was a large attendance and the speakers were repeatedly applauded.

John Crosby Brown, in an opening address, expressed regret at the absence of Andrew Carnegie, who was to have opened the meeting, but who, he said, could not be present.

Mayor George B. McClellan presided and was the first speaker.

M. Lina Bruce, lieutenant-governor-elect, spoke against deciding differences between nations by war and was followed by Archbishop Ireland.

While the archbishop was speaking he was interrupted by a man who cried, "Give somebody else a chance." The archbishop immediately sat down. The audience hooted the man who had shouted and ushers tried to find him, but failed. Then the audience applauded until Archbishop Ireland resumed his speech.

Letters from Grover Cleveland, Carl Schurz and John Mitchell were read. Letters from Andrew Carnegie and Gen. Nelson A. Miles were also read, after which Bishop Henry C. Potter was introduced and spoke briefly. In conclusion he said:

"I hope that the resolutions which this noble meeting shall pass to-night may have in them a fine note of ringing comment and that senators of the United States will understand that it is the mind of the intelligent people in this great metropolis that war shall cease."

The following resolution was passed:

Whereas, The method of settling international disputes and difficulties by arbitration rather than by force is in accord with the highest prospects of reason and humanity; and,

Whereas, The civilized nations of the world have, by jointly establishing the permanent court at The Hague, recognized the moral obligation which rests upon them to avoid the horrors of war by the submission of their controversies to judicial determination, and,

Whereas, The government of the United States which for the past half century has been foremost in the actual resort to arbitration, has negotiated and is negotiating treaties with various powers making compulsory upon the contracting nations the reference of disputes of a certain nature to the international court at The Hague; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the citizens of New York, in mass meeting assembled, favor the extension by the government of the United States of the principle of arbitration to all questions which can not otherwise be brought to a peaceful determination.

CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH.

Parents Were Frightfully Injured in Attempt to Rescue Them.

Piedmont, W. Va., Dec. 17.—Two children of Riley O'Haner, aged 6 and 3 years respectively, were burned to death just west of here. The dwelling which was occupied by Mr. O'Haner and his wife and four children caught fire and was completely destroyed. Mr. and Mrs. O'Haner were frightfully burned in a vain attempt to rescue the two children that were cremated. The other two children escaped uninjured.

THE NEW YORK POSTAL CLERK.

He Finds That His Imagined Wealth Is Worthless.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 17.—Max Hart, the New York postal clerk, who purchased an old trunk and found it contained $30,000 worth of bonds of the Douglasville Gap Electric Lighting and Water Co., upon writing here found his imagined wealth was worthless, as the bonds had never been floated.

CHRISTMAS TURKEYS Plentiful.

Cincinnati, Dec. 17.—Christmas turkeys will be cheap this year, according to commission men. Large consignments began to arrive Friday, and in a short time the market was glutted. One firm on Race street stated that it had received more turkeys Friday than on any other day in its history.

Will Appeal to the President.

New York, Dec. 17.—President Roosevelt will be asked to request the members of the New York Building Trades Employers' association to make peace with the old plasterers society of this city.

Gen. Stoessel Wounded.

London, Dec. 17.—Gen. Stoessel, the Russian military commander at Port Arthur, according to a dispatch from Chefoo to the Daily Telegraph, has again been wounded, this time by a rifle bullet. The report adds that the wound is not serious.

Merchant Marine Commission Report.

Washington, Dec. 17.—Report of the merchant marine commission will not be made to congress until January 4. Members of the commission until Friday had expected to make the report before the holiday recess.

RANDOM YARNLETS.

Sir Arthur Sullivan once wanted to direct Alexander Mackenzie to a house of which he knew the approximate location, but had forgotten the number. He said the foot-scraper in front of the door was in E flat. Sir Alexander kicked several scrapers until he heard the note.

Among the many applicants for the part the late Dan Leno was to have played in the Christmas pantomime at the Drury Lane theater was a 14-year-old boy, who came in haste, hoping "the job wasn't gone." The manager liked his impudence, and so finally engaged him to personate a lizard in the piece.

He was a Rhodes scholar at Oxford. He had come from Germany and was receiving his first lessons in rowing "Back water," said the coach. The German did not understand. The coach explained that it means to use his oar "in the opposite way," and the Rhodes man followed instructions to the letter. He lifted his oar from the rowlock and put the handle into the water.

John Crosby Brown, in an opening address, expressed regret at the absence of Andrew Carnegie, who was to have opened the meeting, but who, he said, could not be present.

Mayor George B. McClellan presided and was the first speaker.

M. Lina Bruce, lieutenant-governor-elect, spoke against deciding differences between nations by war and was followed by Archbishop Ireland.

One of the worst perplexities that a New England school-teacher has met this fall fell to the lot of a young girl at New Auburn. She had nine small children arrive at the school one morning and found that they did not know a word of English and spoke only Russian.

During a curtain speech in Chillicothe, Mo., the other night, Frank James, the ex-bandit, said: "If our Saviour was to come on earth and say to me: 'Where can I get a brave and fearless man to assist St. Peter to guard the portals of Heaven?' I would say: 'Cole Younger.'

Hamlet A. Rye, a business man of Sioux City, Ia., is organizing a society which is to be called the Appendixes club. Mr. Rye has called a meeting of all who have lost their vermiforms and purposes a permanent organization. "It will be something like a G. A. R.," Mr. Rye said. "We can talk of our wounds and our battles within the prison walls of the hospitals."

Resolved, That we, the citizens of New York, in mass meeting assembled, favor the extension by the government of the United States of the principle of arbitration to all questions which can not otherwise be brought to a peaceful determination.

One of the worst perplexities that a New England school-teacher has met this fall fell to the lot of a young girl at New Auburn. She had nine small children arrive at the school one morning and found that they did not know a word of English and spoke only Russian.

During a curtain speech in Chillicothe, Mo., the other night, Frank James, the ex-bandit, said: "If our Saviour was to come on earth and say to me: 'Where can I get a brave and fearless man to assist St. Peter to guard the portals of Heaven?' I would say: 'Cole Younger.'

Hamlet A. Rye, a business man of Sioux City, Ia., is organizing a society which is to be called the Appendixes club. Mr. Rye has called a meeting of all who have lost their vermiforms and purposes a permanent organization. "It will be something like a G. A. R.," Mr. Rye said. Master's Sale!

BOURBON CIRCUIT COURT.

Alma Adair, &c., Plaintiffs.

Vs. Notice of Sale.

Bruce Adair, &c., Defendants.

By virtue of a judgment of sale made and entered in the above styled cause at the November Term 1904 of the Bourbon Circuit Court, I will expose at public sale on the Public Square in Paris, Kentucky, on Wednesday, Dec. 28th, 1904, about the hour of 11 a. m., the following described real estate, to-wit:

Beginning at a stake in Higgin's avenue, 6 1/2 feet distance from the yard fence so as to include the sidewalk, corner to John W. Thomas; thence along said avenue 6 1/2 feet distance from and parallel with the yard fence 120 feet to J. Sweeney Ray's corner; thence leaving the avenue and with his line 158 feet nine inches to a stake, corner to said John W. Thomas; thence with his line 128 feet 4 inches to a stake corner to said Thomas; thence with his line 163 feet 4 inches to the beginning.

Said sale will be made upon credits of six and twelve months for equal parts of the purchase money, for which the purchaser will be required to execute bonds bearing interest from the day of sale until paid, at the rate of six per cent. per annum, having the force and effect of judgments, but if the purchaser prefers, he may pay cash in lieu of executing the bonds.

No sale will be made for less than thirty-six hundred dollars ($3,600).

This, December 5, 1904.
EMMETT M. DICKSON,
Master Com. Bourbon Circuit Court.

Madame Rejane at Lexington.

Mme. Gabrielle Rejane, the great French comedienne, will be seen at the Lexington opera house Wednesday, December 21. She will present her most successful play "Zaza."

Mme. Rejane's present tour of this country is the theatrical event of the year in this county. Her tour of twelve weeks is under the direction of Liebler & Co. and during it she will be seen in but ten cities. Of these, Lexington is one and it is to be expected that the representative theatre goers of the entire bluegrass region will attend the performance and welcome the great star.

Mme. Rejane is the greatest actress of Europe, possibly of the entire world, and is accompanied by her own company which she brought with her direct from Paris. The sale of seats opens Saturday, December 17, and all orders when accompanied by remittances, will receive, prompt attention.

FOR RENT.

A house of 3 rooms and kitchen, yard and garden, on Winchester street. Apply to East Tenn. Phone No. 198.

WE have received for the Christmas trade an extra nice stock of Oranges, Grapes, Apples, Grapefruit, and every variety of fruit and ask you to inspect it before buying.

20-2t BAIRD & TAYLOR.

Startling Evidence.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequalled. A recent expression from J. T. McFarland, Bentorville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctor to the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grip. Guaranteed by Oberdorfer, the druggist. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50¢ and $1.00. J. T. HINTON.

BEFORE you slip, see T. Porter Smith.

Worst Of All Experiences.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newton, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered. For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50¢. It guaranteed by Oberdorfer, the druggist.

14t T. F. BRANNON.

Fine Whiskies.

I have a fine line of the best whiskies, such as James E. Pepper, Tarr and VanHook, both in bottled and barrel goods. These whiskies are recommended for medical purposes and family use. I am also agent for the famous Lion Beer.
